Training is a significant investment for organizations, but sometimes training falls flat in terms of actual improvements in the workplace. So, how do leaders ensure a return on those training investments? This program will focus on how to make learning pay off in the workplace... after the classroom sessions are over. Topics will include:

- What type of training is the best for your situation and environment
- How to recognize if training is the appropriate activity
- What leaders need to do once the training is complete
- Measuring the ROI of training programs

Representatives from WEDnet and workforce development will also be available with information about services and funding opportunities.

$30.00 / Continental breakfast provided.
