Resources for Manufacturing

We've all heard Einstein's famously proclaimed definition of insanity: continuing to do the same thing over and over, and then expecting different results. Yet we continue to hear… "but that's the way we've always done it" and people and processes continue on with old habits whether it's cost effective and efficient or not.

Dealing with change can be difficult, but it doesn't have to be. There are resources available that can help you in many aspects of your business, whether there are changes you choose to make or changes that your customers or the industry demands. Join us to hear from 3 of those resources right here in Warren County.

Northwestern Industrial Resource Center (NWIRC)

The NWIRC enhances the competitiveness and growth of small- and medium-sized manufacturers in northwest Pennsylvania by working with clients to improve productivity and technological performance.

Steel Valley Authority and the Strategic Early Warning Network (SEWN)

The Strategic Early Warning Network (SEWN) supports Pennsylvania manufacturers by providing layoff aversion

Warren County Chamber of Business and Industry (WCCBI)

The purpose of the Chamber is to use its energy and all available resources and talents to ensure that Warren County is a preferred place to live and work.
